OneNet is an operational division of OSRHE and Royal serves both as head of OneNet and chief information officer for OSRHE. OneNet operates on user fees, not state funding and partners with internet service providers like AT&T and Cox to provide services. It is a member of Internet 2 and owns over 2000 miles of fiber optic cables throughout the state. It serves government agencies, colleges, schools, tribal agencies, career technology centers, libraries, hospitals, non-profits, and tag agencies throughout the state. The services provided include web and email hosting, virtual machines, data storage, colocation, MPLS network virtualization, video conferencing and more. It is partnering with Zoom to lower the cost of providing video conferencing. Academic libraries in particular use OneNet's 100G high speed network ring, virtual collocation (OSU Libraries uses space in the data center), and data storage. OneNet works with ODL and others to provide letters of support and technology support for grant applications. Some notable projects include the K20 Center at OU and the Global Learning Center at Oral Roberts University. OneNet is also proactive in developing strategies for dealing with cyber security, including upcoming cyber security events at OU and OSU. OneNet is also a part of the Pacific Wave partnership that expanded its scientific network east of the Rockies to include Oklahoma, Texas, and Chicago. Royal also introduced April Goode and Karen Carter who work in public relations for OneNet and developed the video on what OneNet does that was shared in the meeting.
